TO EBENEZER TABERNACLE

Pastor of Barton Methodist Has Accepted a Local Pastorate.

STATES HIS AIMS

Will Begin Pastorate at Expiration of Present Term.

Rev. F. W. Hollis, who has been pastor of Barton Street Methodist Church for four years, and who recently announced his intention to withdraw from the Methodist Church, has accepted a local pastorate at the Ebenezer Tabernacle at the close of his term at Barton street.

In response to the urgent and personal invitation of the officials of Ebenezer Tabernacle, a house of God, newly erected on Gage Ave. north, he has decided to become their pastor on the distinct understanding that his church will stand pre-eminently for the introduction and carrying out of the plan that I have cherished for some time and long had the satisfaction of me to see a new life in church life and activity, based on the word and the word of God, and means so much in vision to-day. This new life will be as free as possible from machinery and the works of the flesh, conforming as closely as possible to the spirit and form of the Apostolic Church and reviving the spirit and aims of "Pursuing the vision of life, simplicity of taste, reality of motive; strenuousness of purpose; communion with the individual soul to God and belief in the supreme authority of scripture. His church will stand pre-eminently for spirituality in all its activities. Our aim will be to know Him, through fellowship, holy study and prayer, and to make the known by going, coming, giving and praying.

Our standard will be three-fold: love, faith, and perfect love. The largest possible degree of faith and love and everything good and true.

The larger degree of faith introduced the greater degree of love. The love of all others the church and its ministry will be enlarged, the love of all others the church and its ministry will be enlarged, the love of all others the church and its ministry will be enlarged.

For this reason, the pastor refuses a salary, but will be paid by the free-will offerings of the people as they may touch their hearts.

Our standard will be three-fold: love, faith, and perfect love. The largest possible degree of faith and love and everything good and true.

LOEW'S

In "The Greatest Question," the new L. W. Griffith masterpiece, featuring the film bill at Loew's next week, a theme new to the screen is presented, set in a drama of the hopes and joys of plain, everyday folks such as abound everywhere. Nellie Jones, symbol of girlhood, the Illinois, in whom are mirrored the average family of to-day, asking little beyond the right to live in comfort and quiet, facing the future with the hope that death is only a pause between two eternities—these, and other simple topics are the folk with whom Mr. Griffith has created a master work of promise and cheer.

As the headliner of the variety programme, Marcus Loew has secured for a week's entertainment here those four sterling singers, the Blossom City Four, that whom no snapper, more delightful vocalists and fustlers are to be found anywhere.

Around a dramatic incident in his great screen-play, D. W. Griffith has built a powerful story. The heroine, Nellie Jones (Lillian Gish) is the daughter of a pedlar. From her fourth year, she remembered riding along country roads with her parents, and her whole life was a romance, the only thing of color for her being the memory of a girl who was beaten to death somewhere. With the sorrow of her father's death, that memory faded. Then—on the death of her mother—she was left, a mere slip of a girl hardly able to understand what it all meant; she was left alone in the world.

Finding a home with a poor farmer's family, Nellie struggles with them for a bare existence. But the farm is apparently unfit for cultivation, a sticky substance resists all their attempts to grow produce.

Determined to be of some assistance to the friends who have taken her into their home, Nellie hires herself out to the derelict, neighbors. As a servant girl, The couple turn out to have friendly instincts, and Nellie suffers tortures of various sorts. However, she sticks to her job, when she finds how much value her few dollars so earned are to her friends the Hilltons. Then comes the death on a submarine of the eldest Hillton boy, despite the mother's faith that he will be spared to her. The blow is too much for the broken father, whose faith has waned as the result of continual reverses. As the younger son cannot manage the farm, the father decides to send the entire family to the poorhouse.

Then come some of the biggest moments in the story. How the mother's faith in the Hereafter is revived; the startling truth which Nellie discovers about her torturers; the excitement on the Hillton farm, where the "wicked suit" turns out to be a ruse old—these are but a few of the exciting and scraphically depicted events in an unusual film story teeming with human interest, and enacted by a brilliant company of famous stars. Lillian Gish and Robert Harroon, in addition to many other well-known celebrities, grace the cast.

Vaudeville fans will recall with pleasure the former appearances here of the Blossom City Four. Virtue, gifted, full of dash and pep, the quartette of clean-cut young harmonies are the best work in vaudeville entertainment. Their repertoire this season is enlarged and brought right up-to-date.

"Too Easy" is a skill which will tickle the ribcages of everybody who loves to laugh. As a comedy gem, it sparkles very brightly in the hands of George Randall and his clever company. Then there are Jack and Tommy Weir, two breezy youths who have many friends here, and who will, doubtless, receive their fair share of applause. With enthusiasm, for there is fun and music galore in their turn. Williams and Burles, eccentric and versatile entertainers and other good acts, together with an extensive bill of supplementing pictures, round out an exceptional show.

SENNETT SENSATION COMING. Week after next the costly and elaborate live-real Mack Sennett comedy sensation will top the screen programme at Loew's. "Down on the Farm" is the title of this much talked feature; and everybody who has read of his many absurd situations and original kind of fun will realize just what a riot of hilarity will be stirred up by the local appearance of the new mirth-maker. Beautiful Louise Fazenda is the "comedic beauty of comic charm," and Ben Turpin has a smashing role.

TEMPLE

Something unusual in the way of entertainment will be offered at the Temple theatre next week, beginning Monday afternoon, when that remarkable picture, "The End of the Road," will be shown. It is one of the opening runs in a nationwide campaign to be waged against venereal diseases and comes here endorsed by the Canadian National Council for Combating Venereal Diseases. No one under sixteen years of age will be admitted to the Temple next week, but everyone over that age should see this great educational photoplay which has received the endorsement of press, public and publisher in every city where it has appeared.

The End of the Road is a tale that brings home the law "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" and there is no respecting of persons. What man brings upon himself and his helpless offspring, is part of this valuable lesson, and while some of the examples shown are revolting almost beyond words yet it is a fact that the larger part of humanity has to be startled or shocked into a finer state of mind. For such it is a lesson that can never be forgotten. No young man or woman can see "The End of the Road" and not pause and consider their conduct, as well as their sympathy for all of God's unfortunate.

When anybody advises a young girl against promiscuous kissing there are those who shout "old fogies" and laugh against it. Van Winkle ideas of maidenly modesty and reserve. It may be that "The End of the Road" will be accused of old-fashioned notions when it points out the peril of indiscriminate coquetry. Yet venereal disease very often lurks in a kiss. This is entirely aside from the question of maidenly modesty—it is a question of protection against contamination. We have done away with the public drinking cup as the result of numerous sermons preached pointing out the danger of placing healthy lips where diseased lips have rested, but an instant before. Yet here is a young girl as shown in "The End of the Road" who is infected (the syphilis through indirectly kissing a diseased chauffeur. Later the fatal syphilis sore appears on her lips and she collapses when she learns the awful truth.

If a girl realized that she became "drop worn" goods through allowing herself to be embraced or kissed during "irritating episodes" with young men she would probably resolve to save her carcases for the man she intended to marry. But how much more would she feel ashamed or alarmed if she knew the risk she ran of contracting disease. This picture illustrates with great vividness the danger girls run who have been left in ignorance by their mothers of truths they ought to know.

Claire Adams, a Canadian girl, a native of Toronto, and perhaps the most beautiful woman ever screened on the screen, was the heroine who was warned in time by a wise mother of the evils she must avoid. Richard Bennett, a famous actor and pioneer in health propaganda, plays opposite Miss Adams.

was produced primarily as a health educational film. It is a gripping dramatic production, every minute of its seven reels teeming with human interest.

LYRIC

The Duke's Dancers, Hugh Herbert and company and A. Robins and partner are the trio of big headliners which Manager Wall announces for the Lyric theatre this coming week. Theodore Butik, late of the Russian Imperial Ballet, with his talented lady dancers will be seen in classical and character dances. Of this act, Morgan

Powell, of the Montreal Star, said: "An act of unusual merit is that of the Duke's dancers. Obviously Russian by training, these artists execute a programme which affords striking contrast and picturesque features. The man dances a Russian horpige with an air and a skill that fascinate. One of the girls tall and thin, gives an exhibition of toe dancing which combines grace with rhythmic charm, and the three together take part in a Dutch comedy dance that develops into a melange of everything. Their costumes are suited to the respective dances, and they succeed in conveying through motion, pose and pose, ideas and pictures both definite and clear cut."

Hugh Herbert is an actor, author, producer. After writing and producing many sketches for other people he has set about writing and producing one for himself. This is called "Mind Your Business," and is a sparkling little comedy, showing the effects of mediocrity. Mr. Herbert is a clever portrayer of character and he has given the vaudeville stage some magnificent creations, studies that were real and human. In his new vehicle, he is found at his best both as an author and an actor. Mr. Herbert is a clever comedian but he puts more than fun some moral, and occasionally there is a thought and there is a good wholesome, some moral, and occasionally there is just a little bit of sentiment and pathos.

A. Robins, the humorous imitator of musical instruments is indeed a walking music store. With remarkable powers over his vocal organ, he is able to correctly and melodiously imitate the tones of violin, cello, horn, cornet, flute etc. In the make-up of an eccentric musician Robins manages to produce both humor and harmony in abundance. He has just closed a 62 weeks' engagement with the musical comedy, "Kathinka." He is assisted by a charming little maid.

William Hallen is one of the funniest men that vaudeville has produced in a long time. He tells stories and stunts while he tells them. Miss Hunter who appears with Mr. Hallen is a capable violinist. She produces a large broad musical tone and imbues her music with such a spirit, vivacity and infectious magnetism as to win her audience completely.

Miss Hilda White in her rendition of songs has not only but many ideas that make her a little bit different and possibly a little more successful. She is an attractive young woman with plenty of personality.

Silent Nonsense is the title of a pantomime comedy and variety offering presented by Ed. M. Gordon and Ida Day. Their entertainment includes some dancing and bicycle riding, both of which are excellently done and they also provide plenty of enjoyable comedy.

The picture feature will be Constantine Blancy in "Ernstwhile Susan."

FIRST METHODIST ORGAN. On Thursday evening, April 23, at 8 o'clock, the handsome new organ recently installed in First Methodist Church will be formally opened.

Harry J. Allen, organist of this church, Mrs. Mabel Manley Pickard, soprano, of Toronto, and the Manchester Male Quartette being the artists of the evening.

The programme arranged is a most pleasing one and one that will appeal to lovers of high-class music. Much interest is being manifested in the event, and indications point to an other of the capacity audiences which crowd the concert given by the popular organist and director. His programme has been selected with a view to displaying the beauties of the costly new instrument, which will hereafter be a feature of the services in First Methodist.

Mrs. Mabel Manley Pickard is an artist of ability and charm, and her appearance in this city will be an event. The Manchester Quartette, a favorite organization composed of some of Hamilton's finest talent, made up of W. A. McCutcheon, E. H. Hetherington, E. C. Collins and E. R. Henselwood.

The new organ is an example of the latest features in the organ-makers' art. It has four manuals, electric, chimas and harp, and over 4,000 pipes. It will be played for the first time at the services on Sunday, April 25.

CHURCH OF ST. THOMAS.

At the service of praise to be held in the Church of St. Thomas on Wednesday evening next, the choir under the direction of Little M. J. Peene, will sing "The Holy City," by Alfred Gail, a work of rare interest to both singers and congregations. There is that beauty of tone prevailing through part I, descriptive of the better land rising to heights of joy and glory so well expressed in the chorus for double choir in part 2. The solos such as "Joy, Hail to Thee," "A Heaven and a New Earth" and "These Are They," are familiar to all and will be sung by Miss Ann McLean, soprano, Mrs. George Allan, contralto, Mr. D. Lowell, tenor, and Mr. George Allan, bass. The service will commence promptly at 8 o'clock and should be of interest to all lovers of sacred music.

Gen. Wood Says No Evidence of Conspiracy in Switch Walk-Out

STRIKE BROKEN

A. F. of L. Secretary Challenges Attorney-General's Words.

Chicago, April 16.—Major-General Leonard Wood, Commander of the Central Department of the United States Army, who resided in Chicago yesterday from an eastern speaking tour because of the insurgent strike of railroad workers, to-night said he did not find "any evidence of conspiracy between the railway strike and industrial workers of the world."

Gen. Wood declared he found traffic conditions improving throughout the Department.

Attorney-General Palmer, on Wednesday, declared reports from his department linked the "illegal" switchmen's walkout with industrial workers of the world's plans for "One Big Union," and a nation-wide walkout.

Military intelligence officers had been unable to find any connection between the two Gen. Wood said that Gen. Wood added that he would remain on leave for the present, as nothing in the situation here made necessary his presence at department headquarters.

After revoking the charters of three lodges of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, two in Chicago and one in San Francisco, Whitney, Vice-President of the Brotherhood, to-day ordered the striking members of the organization in the Chicago terminal district to return to work by midnight, or face expulsion from the union, with loss of their seniority rights.

KILLING THE WALRUS.

Will This Mammal Follow the Buffalo to Oblivion?

The killing off of the walrus had far more than anything else to do with the peril of starvation which now hangs over the Eskimos only a few years ago. Reindeer, imported from the north, have been the mainstay of the Eskimos in the past, but the loss of the walrus has been a real disaster.

The walrus is one of the most useful creatures provided by the nature to the Eskimo. It is a source of food, and its skin is used for making boots and other articles. The walrus is also a source of ivory, which is used for making carvings and other articles.

There are to-day comparatively few walrus left in the world, and the prospect is that before long this valuable species will be extinct. The Eskimos are now suffering from a severe famine, and the loss of the walrus has been a real disaster.

It is estimated that the walrus population has decreased by 90 per cent. in the last few years. The Eskimos are now suffering from a severe famine, and the loss of the walrus has been a real disaster.

SAVOY

Present week marks the first production ever of the great Paramount-Artcraft production, Evergreen, and it will be shown at the Savoy under most elaborate circumstances. For many weeks arrangements have been under way to make this week the most attractive week in the theatre's history.

There is to be presented a prodigious specialty arranged by John Arthur of the Regent Theatre, Toronto. There will be ten characters to take part on the stage, a special setting for which has been secured. The young ladies taking part will wear gowns, shoes and lingerie created by the Murray-Kay Company.

A special interest will be the appearance in the cast of Miss Doris Underwood and Charles Fletcher, old favorites of the popular Savoy stock company of past seasons. These artists are being brought here specially for the occasion.

Morrisette and Lapp
Will Wear Hamilton
Uniforms Once More

"Shag" Wires That Both Men Signed Contracts Yesterday--Munkey Wants More Money

Manager Frank Shagnessy's wire to Buffalo on Friday brought results for it was learned this morning that the two men had signed contracts to wear the Hamilton uniforms. Morrisette and Lapp both will be here some time next week for training. Shag had decided to play in the baseball this summer and had signed with one of the Buffalo industrial teams, but after a short talk with "Shag" he decided to play in the Hamilton team. It was welcome news to local directors to learn that Morrisette had signed as he was a strong pitcher and the other was a strong batter. The wire also stated that both men had signed contracts to wear the Hamilton uniforms.

Previous to leaving Hamilton "Shag" was in communication with Walter Shay, who played second base for the London team in the latter part of last season and succeeded in signing that party, but only yesterday word was received from Secretary Farrell of the Minor League's Association that Shay had been awarded to the Shreveport team, so in all probability Hamilton will waive all claim to him.

Walter Munkey, the infielder who signed early this week with the local club, has contracted the hold-over and as a result he will have to be seen at action here this summer. Munkey while talking with "Shag" appeared to be well satisfied with the salary offer and was reported to be ready to sign this morning. A wire was received from him stating that he would not put in for the salary but the offer was increased he would not accept it.

Sporting Comment

The Soldiers' and Sailors' boxing card for Wednesday night next at the Grand Opera House should provide plenty of entertainment for those who love to see the misty action in action. Thirty rounds of boxing will be put on and the majority of boys who will compete, while not top-notchers, know enough about the game to make things interesting.

Manager Shagnessy will have one large field to select his ball club from for this summer. The lanky pilot has already signed over thirty players and he is still in search of material. "Shag" left here with intentions of signing up a few pitchers but he is not allowing any fielders to slip from his grasp if they show promise.

Frankie Wilkinson, Mayor of Mount Hamilton, has called a meeting of the Mountain South Ball League for Monday night at Mission Hall, Concession street. Frankie would like to see all of last year's teams represented and any new teams desirous of entering this league.

How these fighters hate to fight! Jack Dempsey now admits that he is considering a proposition to travel with a circus as soon as the case against him has been settled. In discussing plans for the immediate future Manager Joe Kearns said that as soon as Dempsey was acquitted he would like to have a boxing match with Northwest and then go on the road with a circus. Dempsey would own his own show, he said. Jess Willard was a circus champion instead of a fighting man and it resulted in the loss of much of the popularity he gained through the defeat of Jack Johnson and all of his fistie ability. Will the same thing happen to Dempsey? Jack ought to be more original, at any rate.

Spoiling His Record

Phillies' First Sacker Idle After Playing in 533 Consecutive Games

New York, April 16.—Fred Luderus' record for playing consecutive games has been spoiled. Manager Cravath benched the famous veteran this spring and the Phillies started the National League race Wednesday afternoon at Ebbets Field with Gene Paulette covering the bag while Luderus guarded in a most capable manner for several years. Luderus came from a seat on the bench as his team makes go down to defeat and the only chance he had of keeping his record intact was in the ninth out when he left the bench to play. Luderus was forced to watch the game from the bench and his record of 533 consecutive games was spoiled.

The contest scheduled between the Red Sox and Senators in Boston Wednesday night was postponed because of a snowstorm. Luderus was forced to watch the game from the bench and his record of 533 consecutive games was spoiled.

Took Champion Three Hours to Beat the
"Strangler"

New York, April 16.—Joe Stecher, world's champion heavyweight, yesterday vindicated his right to the title by defeating "Strangler" Lewis in one of the most thrilling and picturesque athletic contests ever seen in this city.

It took him 3 hours 1 minute and 18 seconds to turn the tick after he had himself been several times downed. The end came with spectacular suddenness. They had wrestled about three hours when Lewis managed to clamp a headlock on Stecher and hold it so long that his victory appeared certain. But the wily Nebraska man, as he is called, pulled away and the pair wrestled around the ring all of the night long. Stecher won by a technical knockout.
